Workshop Fee: US $550

Wave Above Shore Acres by Stu Levy

Shore Acres and the Oregon Coast is the focus of this workshop. On the Oregon coast west of Coos Bay, Shore Acres is often termed the "Point Lobos of Oregon." Convoluted rock forms, tide pools, pristine sand dunes and volcanic "seastacks" form the backdrop for an intensive photographic experience with Stu Levy and Don Kirby. Field sessions fill the early mornings and late afternoons. At mid-day, the instructors will lead print viewing and critique sessions, and will present their own work. Stu and Don are intimately familiar with the region and offer you a unique combination of technical expertise and creative insight that promise to make this workshop an unforgettable experience. Information on accommodations will be provided. All camera formats, film, digital, and all printing approaches are welcome.
